Gould Construction Institute Recognizes C. White Marine, Inc. as a 2011 S.T.E.P. Award Winner

The Gould Construction Institute (GCI) recently held their fifth annual Safety & Education Dinner meeting at the Montvale Plaza where they announced the 2011 S.T.E.P. (Safety, Training, Evaluation Process) Award winners, graduating students, the Craft Champion for 2011, and students who have received a Memorial Scholarship to further their education in the construction field.

One of the award winners was C. White Marine, Inc., a Danvers based general contractor specializing in marine construction, pile driving and bridge construction.

Barbara Lagergren, Executive Director of GCI stated that the Safety & Education Dinner Meeting is their premier event of the year. "The employees of C. White Marine, Inc. continue to raise the standards of training and education in the construction industry," stated Mrs. Lagergren. "They tackle some of the most difficult and complex jobs in the construction industry and their safety record is a testament to the high quality of their company."

By drawing attention to the importance of jobsite safety, GCI seeks to make sure that it is something that is not taken for granted. When those companies who are truly committed to ensuring a safe environment for their workforce are recognized, other companies will follow their example.
